

Custom Electrical Building

Here is a small precast building with a brick finish that was used for electrical panels at a pump station. The building was specially designed for high winds and bullet protection. The contractor added the color staining and fixtures on site.